KILLS FELLOW BLOCKMAKER IN A COLD BLOODED MANNER

After a Trivial Quarrel Double Barrelled Shotgun Is Used to Commit One of the Most Atrocious Murders in History of the County.

A disagreement between Dominico Calabresi and Ambale Marcanola, blockmakers employed in the Gray quarries in Rincon Valley between this city and Santa Rosa on Friday of last week, led to one of the most revolting and cold-blooded murders ever recorded in the history of Sonoma county.

The men occupied the same cabin and late Friday afternoon became involved in a dispute over the possession of one of the rooms. One word led to another when Marcanola seized a loaded shotgun that stood in a corner of the cabin and without warning shot Calebresi in the abdomen. The wounded man staggered out of the cabin door and fell to the ground screaming with pain.

Seeing that his victim was still alive and able to rise from the ground the murderer hissed, "I guess you need another dose," and raising the gun, deliberately took aim at his victim and shot him the second time full in the face.

Calebresi fell in his tracks and his murderer then fled into the hills and made good his escape and is still at large.

Parties who witnessed the shooting communicated with the sheriff's office by phone and shortly after Sheriff Smith and a number of his deputies were on the ground. They found the wounded man [illegible] alive, but he died before he [illegible]ld be taken to the county hos[illegible]l.

[illegible]he officers immediately com[illegible]ced a search for the murderer, [illegible]h has been kept up all week, [illegible] so far he has succeeded in [illegible]ing them.

[illegible]hose acquainted with the fugitive say that possibly he may have committed suicide, as he was a desperate daredevil sort of fellow with a criminal record behind him in Italy.

Following is a description of the murderer:

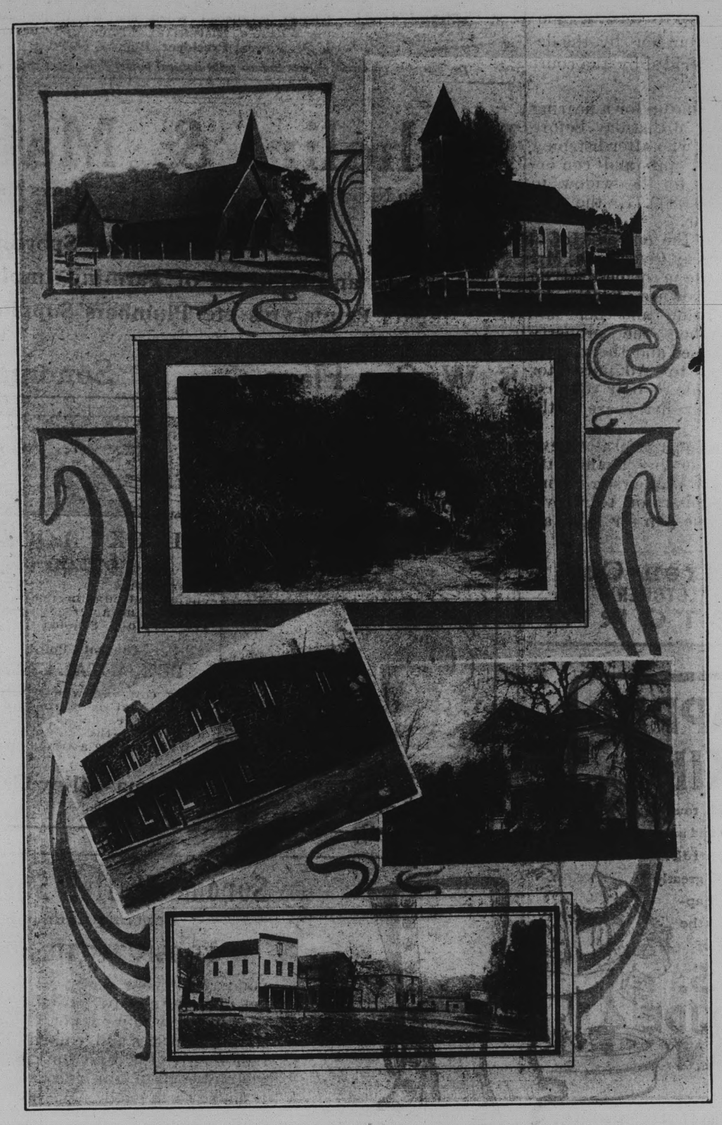
Nativity, Italian; skin very dark; age 25 years; height about five feet nine inches; weight about 150 pounds; straight, black hair; eyes, dark, large and evasive; rawboned; slim face; very prominent nose; large front teeth; stooping shoulders; walks slouchily, with long steps; was freshly shaven Feb. 1; when last seen wore a black slouch hat, crushed in front; coat and trousers were of the same cloth, black mixed with gray; heavy working shoes in good condition; black shirt without a tie; had woolen gloves; carried a twelve-bore shotgun.

Large Land Holdings Being Cut Into Small Farms

One of the evidences of increasing prosperity to any farming community is the breaking up of large ranches into small holdings, and that is one of the reasons why our town and valley has been forging ahead in population and wealth the past few years. This week the big Buena Vista ranch of over a thousand acres has been reduced in size, G. Ritz having purchased thirty-three acres of the big tract for a small farm from Henry Caillieud. The sale was made by Otto Wagner.

F. Nichelini transacted business in Santa Rosa last Monday.

GLEN ELLEN DISTRICT ONE OF THE RICHEST AND MOST PICTURESQUE IN SONOMA VALLEY



On Account of Its Beauty and Healthfulness It Enjoys an Enviable Reputation Among Health and Pleasure Seekers of Adjoining Cities---Its Soil Unsurpassed for Fertility---Inhabited by a Progressive People.

The Glen Ellen district extends from Agua Caliente on the south to Kenwood on the north and from Napa county on the east to Sonoma mountain on the west.

Like other parts of the valley, there is much mixed farming in the district. Corn, hay, potatoes, poultry, vegetables, olives, prunes, peaches, apples are all raised by some of the farmers on a few acres. The district is remarkable for the fertility of its soil. There are loams and clays of varying textures and depths which make possible the raising of so many different crops, although much must also be attributed to the semi-tropical climate of the valley and the total absence of heavy storms before and during harvest.

However fertile the lands may be, the beautiful Glen Ellen district enjoys a greater reputation as an attractive place for the vacationist. Numerous streams afford splendid trout fishing and are a source of never ending delight to the person who loves the beautiful in nature.

The delightful shades furnished by the forests and the beautiful nooks along its streams are attractions which the man who loves to spend his vacation in the open air cannot resist, and each year sees a recurring and increasing number enjoying camp life in the district. In fact the Glen Ellen district enjoys a reputation second to none in the state as a delightful place to camp.

The drives are a constant source of delight to the person fortunate enough to possess a horse, automobile or bicycle and excursions through the numerous canyons form one of the greatest diversions of the pleasure seeker. Graham Canyon is particularly noted for its beauty, and the giant redwoods which are found there call for the second visit to more fully appreciate and admire them.

The town of Glen Ellen is situated in the western part of the district at the foot of Sonoma Mountain and has a normal population of about 400. It is the terminus of the Sonoma Valley branch of the Northwestern Pacific railway. It is also reached by the valley branch of the Southern Pacific. The town boasts of several fine brick and stone business blocks, occupied by modern stores. As shown in the cut above, two religious denominations are represented with neat edifices—the Congregationalists and the Catholics. The cut also shows three of the resort hotels of the town. The stone building is the Chauvet, one of the most popular resorts of the valley. The frame building to the right is the Mervyn, which under able management is not a whit less popular than its neighbor. The third is the Glen Ellen, and is also extremely popular with the crowds which annually flock to Glen Ellen for recreation.

While the district proper is out of the hot water belt, mineral springs of medicinal value are found at frequent intervals throughout the district, and the sick and ailing derive great benefit from the use of the waters.

A great many of the residents belong to improvement clubs, and these clubs have done much toward improving the roads, building bridges and otherwise aiding public improvements in the district.

The Sonoma State Home, an institution for the care of feeble minded children, is located in this district about a mile from the town of Glen Ellen. Here the state has expended about two million dollars in the purchase of lands and in the erection of buildings. Many of the attendants live at Glen Ellen.

A progressive people live in the district, occupying homes which are a credit to the county. Several secret societies have organizations here, and the Glen Ellen Grange is one of the noted wideawake organizations of Sonoma county.

Lands in this district are comparatively cheap, when productiveness of the soil and other advantages are considered.

TEN YEARS IN STATE'S PRISON IS SENTENCE FOR DR. BURKE

The Attorneys for the Aged Dynamiter Give Notice of an Appeal---Officials Receiving Congratulations From All Parts of the State.

Dr. W. P. Burke, convicted of attempting to assassinate Lu Etta Smith and her babe, appeared before Judge Seawell for sentence on Monday.

Wm. F. Cowan and J. Rollo Leppo, the brilliant attorneys for the convicted man, who had exhausted every legal means to save the prisoner, were present and argued a motion for a new trial, but the motion was denied by the court, and they gave notice that they would appeal the case.

Dr. Burke was then commanded to stand up for sentence and Judge Seawell sentenced him to serve ten years in San Quentin prison.

After the sentence had been imposed upon the convicted man Judge Seawell made an order permitting Sheriff Jack Smith or his deputies to take Dr. Burke to his sanitarium to attend his brother, who is lying seriously ill there, and to make arrangements to have it properly conducted during his enforced absence.

The verdict of the jury and Judge Seawell's sentence meet with popular approval, and as no man accused of crime ever had a fairer trial it is the concensus of opinion among the legal fraternity that Dr. Burke's chances of securing a new trial are very dubious.

District Attorney Clarence Lea and Sheriff Jack Smith are in receipt of congratulations from officials in various parts of the state for the able manner in which they worked up the case against Dr. Burke and secured his conviction. The verdict is looked upon everywhere as a great victory for society.

Initiation and Banquet.

A number of candidates were initiated into Sonoma Circle, No. 27, U. A. O. D., Sunday evening, Grand Arch Druidess Mrs. Reeg of Placerville, El Dorado county, being present to exemplify the degree work of the order.

After the business of the Circle had been concluded a banquet was tendered the distingushed guest at the Toscano Hotel. About thirty members were present and partook of a splendid spread which had been prepared for them by that prince of caterers, mine host Ciucci. Feasting and speechmaking interspersed with vocal and instrumental music were the order of the evening until midnight.

Mrs. Reeg, in honor of whom the banquet was given, is one of the most popular officers of the Grand Circle.

BRIDGING THE STRAITS OF CARQUINEZ.

Senator Rush has introduced a bill into the State Senate having for its ultimate purpose the building of a great bridge across the straits of Carquinez. The bill provides for a modest appropriation of $10,000 for a preliminary survey and the preparation of plans for a structure to span the straits from the Contra Costa side of San Pablo bay to the Solano shores. The bill also contemplates using a portion of the $18,000,000 State highway fund provided by constitutional amendment at the election last fall, the money thus expended to be returned to the State from the tolls to be collected from the railroad companies, who would thus be enabled to abandon the more expensive ferry service now being used to transport freight and passengers from shore to shore, a saving of both time and money not only to the great railway systems of the State and others that are now heading this way but the general traveling public as well.

The bridging of this waterway has long been contemplated by the Southern Pacific Company at its own expense in its development of the natural resources and possibilities of the State. With that object in view it was only a few years ago surveys were made and plans prepared by that company to join with bands of iron the north and south shores of the straits. Unfortunately for that portion of Northern California from the bay shores to Humboldt county, for which the building of such a bridge meant everything in the way of the development of that section, these plans did not meet with the approval of Major Huer and other government engineers on the grounds that a bridge such as that contemplated by the Southern Pacific Company would shoal the straits and seriously interfere with navigation, and a suspension bridge was advised or none at all.

The Southern Pacific then abandoned an undertaking which meant so much to Sonoma, Mendocino and Humboldt counties, as the great cost of a suspension bridge made its building at that time an impossibility and in consequence the development of this section of the State has been more or less retarded the past few years, shut off as we are from the main lines of the transcontinental railway systems of the country and which the building of this bridge would have put our people in touch with.

However, quoting that old and trite aphorism, "it is an ill wind that blows nobody good," Major Huer's interference with the Southern Pacific's great project may yet prove a blessing to the people of this section of the State. It has always been the opinion of this newspaper that a bridge spanning the Carquinez straits should belong to the people of California, as it will become a part of one of the greatest highways of the Pacific coast, and the $18,000,000 highway fund voted at the last election now provides a way of overcoming the objections of the government engineers and giving to the State the ownership and control of this projected and magnificent public utility.

It is now up to Governor Johnson and the legislature over the heads of the members of which he swings a mighty club to give the dear people, about whom they prate so much, this great public improvement, the preliminary to the fruition of which is provided for in Senator Rush's bill. Therefore we say, let the reformers in Sacramento get busy and actually do something for the people. Let them cast aside for the nonce their efforts to build up a powerful political machine under the false cry of "putting the Southern Pacific out of business" and refrain for the time being of legislating the other fellow's out of office to make way for their own programmers. We repeat let the legislature reform itself, and there can be no better way of making a beginning than by supporting a bill that may make possible the building of a magnificent bridge that will eventually pay for itself out of the tolls exacted from those hated railroads.

Would Reopen Denmark Street

A petition signed by E. Cutter, Charles Cutter, Anna Wallman and others was received by board of supervisors one day this week praying that Denmark street between East Fifth and East Seventh streets, covering three blocks, be reopened. The petition was read by Clerk Felt last Wednesday and the matter set for a hearing on Wednesday, March 8, at 11 a. m.

In connection with the petition to reopen this street it will be interesting to know that seventeen years ago that portion of the street between the blocks named in the petition was closed and abandoned by the board of supervisors at the request of the late Capt. Cutter and others. M. K. Cady was then supervisor of this district and he demanded and received $100 from the petitioners to be paid into the county treasury. Now, that it is the intention to reopen the street for public purposes, a request has been made, and very properly, too, for a return of the money advanced seventeen years ago. A search of the records by the supervisors the other day shows everything in connection with the abandonment of the street with the exception of the payment of the $100. Now the question is: What became of the coin?

Rain commenced falling again Friday after a week's cessation and in consequence it makes one tired to even mention Jupiter Pluvius, who was evidently hypnotized by the preachers when they coaxed him to open up the flood gates of heaven on that memorable Sunday which ended the drouth. MRS. GEISSELMANN WINS HER SUIT

The Administrator of Her Late Husband's Estate Must Pay Her $2,809.77.

The suit instituted in Judge Denny's department of the superior court last week by Mrs. Helene Geisselmann against Christian Schultz, administrator of her late husband's estate, to recover moneys withheld from her by the defendant was decided by the court Saturday.

The action came up for a hearing on the morning of that day before Judge Denny, who after listening to the testimony pro and con ordered judgment for the widow in the sum of $2,809.77, the full amount sued for.

The suit was the outcome of a power of attorney given to a Mr. Curvier to settle a homestead on the property owned jointly by Mrs. Geisselmann and her late husband. When the property had been disposed and the moneys turned over to Administrator Schultz, the widow's only recourse was to sue for her share of the same.

A suit to recover $250 attorney's fees is still pending against the estate, H. P. Mathewson having sued the administrator to recover that amount due him for legal advice.

HUICHICA BONDS BRING PREMIUM.

Sold to Henry Schluckebier, the Petaluma Banker, for $4,101.95

The Board of Supervisors on Wednesday last opened bids for the $4,000 bond issue of the Huichica school district. There were four bidders for the bonds, as follows: H. Schluckebier, $4,101.95; Santa Rosa Bank, $4,041; G. G. Blymer & Co., $4,030; W. R. Staats & Co., $4,027.05.

The bid of Mr. Schluckebier being the best, carrying as it did a premium of $101.95 for the bonds, they were sold to him.

Now, that the bonds have been disposed of after many vexatious delays, the progressive school trustees of our sister district will soon contract for the erection of a modern and commodious school building for the children of that growing district.

To be Sold at Constable's Sale and Thereby Hangs a Tale.

The harness shop of W. H. Bridges on Broadway is to be sold at constable's sale next Tuesday to satisfy a judgment of $72.00 for rent obtained by G. H. Hotz against Bridges in Justice Campbell's court, and thereby hangs a tale.

It was during the exciting supervisorial contest of 1908 that several business men of this city incurred the hatred of a disappointed office-seeker, who failed to carry a single precinct in this valley. Being a poor loser and smarting under defeat he swore vengeance against those who had opposed him in his political aspirations and made his boast he would put them out of business. George Breitenbach, the pioneer harness maker of this city, was one of these and there were others, the editor of this newspaper being one of the number marked for slaughter.

In furtherance of this plan to put out of business men who had the courage of their political beliefs and dared express them the disgruntled office-seeker, prevailed upon several outside supporters to engage in business here for the purpose of running the other fellows out of the town.

Mr. W. H. Bridges of El Verano was one of these and he set up a harness shop on Broadway and to the uninitiated it looked as though it was all of with George, and the same way here, too, for that matter, as a business rival was also imported to do the editor up. But some how the thing did not work. Anyhow, the constable has got the Bridges harness shop while its late owner is said to have opened a butcher shop in San Francisco and is now engaged in killing beeves instead of slaughtering unoffending harness makers.

Oh, by the way we had almost forgotten to mention the startling fact that George Breitenbach, who has been quietly "sawing wood" and making harnesses right along during the interesting period of the past two years, is really doing businessa at the old stand.

Woman's Club Notes.

At the regular meeting of the Club last Friday, after the usual routine of business, it was voted to accept the offers of the two moving picture companies, who have both very generously proposed to aid the Tree Fund. Dates for the coming benefits will be published later.

Announcement was made that the Native Sons are considering a plan for parking the corner of the Plaza where the Bear Flag Pole stands, and keeping the same in order.

A committee was appointed to procure plans and specifications for a new drinking fountain for both man and beast to be erected on the north side of the Plaza.

Next Friday will be Social Day, Mrs. Peterson acting as hostess. Quotations will be from the writings of Will Carleton, and a paper will be read by Miss Florence Murphy on "The Consolidation of Schools." L. S. DUHRING,

Volunteer Firemens' Annual Election and Banquet

The annual election and banquet of the Sonoma volunteer fire department took place Wednesday evening. All the old officers were reelected to serve for another year as follows: President, F. T. Duhring; Chief, E. J. Poppe; First Assistant Chief, Sam B. Lewis; Second Assistant Chief, M. E. Cummings; foreman engine, P. G. Keil; foreman hose cart, Geo. Breitenbach; foreman hook and ladder truck, George Engler.

After the business of the company had been transacted the members adjourned to the Toscano Hotel, where a sumptious spread awaited them. About fifty firemen were present and speech-making, feasting, singing and yarn spinning were indulged in until long after midnight.

An Infant Prodigy.

James, the little four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fields of El Verano, is attracting much attention in musical circles in San Francisco and Oakland. The little chap has developed a marvelous voice for his years. He springs from a family of singers. Mr. J. P. Jones, the noted tenor of Oakland, is an uncle of the child, who will yet be heard from as he will be given a thorough musical education by his parents when he reaches maturity.

A New Firm

Elsewhere in these columns will be found the new advertisement of Nichelini & Maffei, who have bought the hardware establishment of Sam Haven, located in the Yenni building. The members of the new firm are both old residents of the valley and will conduct their establishment on business principles. They have restocked the store with an invoice of new goods and will make a specialty of hardware, paints and oils and sporting goods. We take pleasure in saying that this store is now in the hands of careful, methodical business men who can be depended upon to make good.

BUSINESS LETTERS.

Write to a Man Just as You Would Talk to Him at Your Desk.

Business letter writing is no longer merely "correspondence," but "literature," and the correspondent who formerly wasted his precious breath on such inanities as "Yours received and contents duly noted" is now relegated to the "old school" class, and unless he is willing to adopt the new rules of letter writing he is likely to change not only his position, but find it necessary to change his vocation as well.

The up to date business man does not waste time indulging in the preliminaries of "I beg to acknowledge receipt" or "In reply would say," but goes straight to the subject at issue firmly, without frills, even eliminating the time worn advice, "Awaiting your early reply," and closing without the absurdity of "Begging to remain."

"Write to a man exactly as you would talk to him if he were sitting at your desk," is the maxim of one of the best authorities on letter writing in Chicago. By eliminating useless phrases having no bearing on the subject the business man not only saves his own time in dictating, but that of his stenographer in transcribing the notes. By the old method of letter writing the opening and closing of letters contained almost five lines of useless "form" matter which would average on 100 letters just 500 lines of superfluous effort.—Chicago Tribune.

THE CRESCENT.

Legend of Its Adoption as an Emblem by the Turks.

The crescent has been known since time out of memory. In ancient mythology it decorated the foreheads of Diana and of Astarte, the Syrian Venus. In the days of Rome's greatest glory the ladies wore it as an ornament in their hair.

Since the foundation of Constantinople, the ancient Byzantium, it has been the emblem of the city and as such adorns its walls and public buildings, besides being stamped on its coins and postage. The legend which accounts for its universal adoption in Turkey, and Constantinople in particular, is as follows:

Philip of Macedon laid siege to the city in the year 340 B. C. He chose a night of unusual darkness for the proposed assault, but was foiled by the moon suddenly breaking from behind a cloud. In commemoration of this providential deliverance the crescent was adopted as the symbol of the city. The Mohammedan sultans were slow to assume this emblem until some one mentioned that it was the symbol of increasing greatness, power changing as rapidly as the phases of the moon. —Westminster Gazette.

Federal Homestead Laws.

The federal homestead laws begin with the act of 1862, now a part of the United States revised statutes. Their policy is to give portions of the public lands to those who will settle, cultivate and make permanent homes upon them. Any person who is the head of a family or who is twenty-one years of age and is a citizen of the United States or who has filed his declaration of intention to become such may acquire a tract of unappropriated public land, not exceeding 160 acres, on condition of settlement, cultivation and continuous occupancy as a home by him for the period of five years and the payment of certain moderate fees. It is expressly declared that no lands acquired under this statute shall in any event become liable to any debt contracted prior to the issuing of the patent therefor by the government to the settler.—New York American.

Cheap Family History.

Even in political defeat there are compensations. A Washington heights man who aspired to office tells of one that he discovered.

"Must have cost you a pile of money to run, didn't it?" a friend asked.

"About $1,600, but still I came out $400 ahead."

"How?" said the friend.

"On genealogical research. My wife has a society bee in her bonnet and had about agreed to pay a man $2,000 to look up my family history, but when I became a candidate my opponents did that for me and saved us the money."—New York Times.

Eight Lions.

There are eight lions known the world over—the lion of St. Mark's in Venice, the four lions at the base of the Nelson monument in Trafalgar square, the lion of Waterloo, the lion of Lucerne and the lion of Chaeronea. Ruskin in his "Stones of Venice" said that the lion of St. Mark's was the one lion the fierce expression of which no artist had ever been able to reproduce. Ths beast of bronze has the distinction also of wearing a pair of wings.—London Graphic.

Why He Left.

Long—Why did you leave the place where you formerly boarded?

Short—Because the landlady had too much curiosity.

Long—In what direction?

Short—Oh, she was continuously asking me when I was going to pay my board bill.—Chicago News.

The Next Question.

"Dora's invited to a swell party," said the mother.

"How much will the gown cost?" asked the father, who knew what was coming.—Detroit Free Press.

Not a Freshman.

DIATOMITE.

Infusorial Earth Formed by Bodies of Minute Snellfish.

Diatoms are tiny creatures that multiply very rapidly until they form a scum upon the surface of the water in many parts of the world. They are rarely more than one-hundredth part of an inch in diameter and often considerably less. Their shells are composed of silica, and these shells are well known to the microscopist on account of their great beauty

When the little creatures die the shells sink to the bottom of the stream or pond, where they form a kind of siliceous mud, and there are vast deposits of this material in various parts of the earth. This infusorial earth, as it is called, has been christened diatomite, and it is being used for a variety of purposes under the name kieselguhr. It is employed as a vehicle or absorbent for nitroglycerin, and the resultant paste is dynamite. Diatomite is an excellent nonconductor of heat, and in this capacity it is used for filling the hollow interiors of the walls of safes, as a lining for stoves and furnaces and as a covering for steam pipes and boilers For such purposes as these it has an advantage over asbestos in the matter of price and also of weight.

It can be made into bricks or slabs by the addition of a small quantity of lime or clay, and these bricks can be raised to a white heat without showing any signs of fusion.

Diatomite occurs in great quantities in the United States, in Prussia, in parts of Scotland, in Canada and to a lesser degree in Western Australia and New Zealand.—Harper's Weekly.

BOTH WERE STARTLED.

An Astonished Woman and a Still More Astonished Leopard.

Kula is a district in the Himalayas consisting of a chain of the most lovely valleys conceivable, with this draw back, among others, that each hill path that runs by the inhabitants' huts more often than not contains a lurking leopard. One day a worthy Kula house wife came out from her cooking and, standing on the edge of rock, emptied a pan of boiling water into the rank herbage growing below. It fell splash on the back of a sleeping leopard, who jumped perpendicularly into the air as high as the roof of the hut.

What might have happened next who can say? But the astonished woman dropped the pan with a clang on the rock, and the leopard took one leap downhill. The pan followed, and the leopard's downward leaps became longer and swifter as the pan bounded after it from rock to rock. When last seen that leopard had just achieved a leap of about 350 feet to the very bottom of the ravine, thousands of feet below, and the pan whirled about 500 feet over it on to the opposite side.

The leopard would have eaten the old woman with pleasure, but a pan, the contents of which first scalded half the hide off him and then bounded, clanging in his wake, from the top of the Himalayas to the plains below was something he could not face.

Money Boxes.

Money boxes to encourage thrift among the penny wise are ancient and popular institutions. A dictionary of 1585 mentions "money boxes of potter's clay wherein boys put their money to keepe," and doubtless the thrifty child of all ages had his money box of some sort or another. Of late years tin has been the favorite material, but the writer has recollections of an elaborate earthenware thatched cottage, into which the money was dropped through a slit in the roof, which only infinite patience could hit again when it came to wriggling the money out. As a lock-up investment that cottage was unequaled.—Glasgow Herald.

Watching the Head Hunters.

In the Kongo one of the most industrious peoples are the Batetela. In gathering rubber they go into the forests inhabited by the Baukutu head hunting cannibals. While the men are in the forest the camp is guarded by a man who surveys the surroundings from a scaffold and by a drummer. When the Baukutu are seen to approach the drummer beats the alarm and all the men return to the camp to fight. The weapons used are the spear, shield, bow and arrow. This sentinel earns in the neighborhood of $100 of our money a year, which enables him to buy a wife.—Christian Herald.

Why She Had Not Wed.

Young Bride—You don't know how happy I am. I wonder why you never married, my dear Miss Old Maid.

Elderly Spinster—My poor child, I've always said I never could wed until I met a man different from all other men and full of courage.

Young Bride—Of course you could not. How stupid of me to know!

Going Some.

The New Hat Tree—And you're a centenarian? By George! Aside from a few cracks in your face, you hold your age mighty well. What's the secret?

The Grandfather's Clock (serenely)—I keep regular hours and always find something for my hands to do.—Puck.

Three Conditions.

Holiness is an infinite compassion for others. Greatness is to take the common things of life and walk truly among them. Happiness is a great love and much serving. Olive Schreiner.

Contentment is always perched on the round of the ladder just above you.
